

Cistercian and Midland Black Ware 16-17th Centuries

Usually drinking vessels of cups, tall mugs and tankards were made. This reflected the change in eating and drinking habits which had spread from the continent.

Drinking Vessels

The drinking vessels below were found when Kirby Muxloe Castle moat was drained in 1912.

All the items are in the Leicester City & Leicestershire Museums collections.

Photographed and compiled by
Andy Kirkland